WORLD ECONOMIC OUTLOOK, OCTOBER 1985

Revised Projections by the Staff of the International Monetary Fund

These revised projections to the World Economic Outlook published in April 1985 review the increasing signs of hesitancy in the pace of world economic expansion in the first half of 1985, marked by a slowing of growth in the industrial countries and a significant fall in commodity prices. They show that although growth prospects for the industrial countries in the period 1985-90 remain generally on course, growth in the developing countries is expected to be somewhat lower than projected earlier.

The projections cover the current evolution of and prospects for output, employment, prices, international payments and debt, and the policy stances for both industrial and developing countries. A final section summarizes the policy conclusions that arise out of the new analysis, and a Statistical Appendix completes the volume.
